Ontario's Brooklyn Moors (Dynamo) and Québec's René Cournoyer (Gymnika) captured the senior all-around titles at the 2018 Elite Canada competition held this past weekend at Telus Stadium in Québec City.

Moors edged out new senior Ana Padurariu of Ontario's Gemini Gymnastics, 54.335-54.085. 2016 Olympian Rose-Kaying Woo (Gym Richelieu) won the bronze for Québec.

"Overall I'm really happy with this competition," said Moors, the younger sister of 2012 Olympian Victoria Moors, "because we upgraded all of my lines on floor, and I had a new acro on beam, and a couple of new bar skills, and we didn't know how it was going to go because they're all really new."

Moors tumbled a new layout front, double front mount on floor, along with a Podkopayeva (double front half) and 2 1/2 to layout front full. On beam she added a very tricky front aerial, tuck front combination (previously seen by Ukrainian Maria Livchikova), while her upgrade on bars included a Bhardwaj transition.

Moors missed her new combo on beam in Sunday's apparatus finals, but performed beautifully on floor exercise to take the gold on that event.

"It ended up going well on the first day," Moors said, "and then (in Sunday's finals) I was really happy because I hit all of my lines on floor and got the highest score I've ever gotten on floor, so I was super thrilled."

Moors, who turns 17 on February 23, was Canada's breakout star of last year's world championships in Montreal, where she finished fifth in the floor exercise final and won the Longines Prize of Elegance. In Québec City, she was named the Canadian Senior Female Gymnast of the Year for 2017 along with Ellie Black, who made history in Montreal with the all-around silver.

Moors' coach, two-time Olympic champion Elvira Saadi, also shared 2017 Coach of the Year honors with Black's coaches,

David Kikuchi
and Keiji Yamanaka

David

Black, who competed balance beam only in Québec City, was delighted to share the award with her younger teammate.

"It was incredible," said Black, a 2012 and 2016 Olympian. "It was such an amazing year and that was such an amazing award to receive so I'm very thankful for that and to be able to receive that with Brooklyn is awesome. She did a great job (last year)."

Black, who is aiming for the upcoming Commonwealth Games in Australia, said she was also thrilled that there were co-winners in the women's coach category as well.

"It's all about the team here in Canada," she said. "We work together as a team, we work well. It's nice to be able to share that together after such a great year of accomplishments. Our coaches are one of the reasons we're able to get to where we are today and without them, we wouldn't be able to achieve everything we have."

Padurariu, coached by 1980 Olympic all-around champion Yelena Davydova, lost the title in the last rotation with a fall on vault (11.850). She earned her top score on uneven bars (inside Stalder-blind to piked Jaeger; inside Stalder to piked Tkatchev; full-twisting double; 14.267). Padurariu skipped the apparatus finals.

2016 Olympian Shallon Olsen of Vancouver's Omega Gymnastics finished sixth all-around and won the vault title.

Cournoyer won his third consecutive Elite Canada title, scoring 80.800 to top veteran Jackson Payne of Calgary (79.234) and 17-year-old Darren Wong of Vancouver Phoenix (78.034).

"I'm so happy," said Cournoyer, who turns 21 on April 23. "I had such a great day and had a lot of fun. I had a few new routines which I nailed today and my vault was a huge vault and I stuck it which made me really happy."

Cournoyer was also named Senior Male Athlete of the Year for Canada, while his coach, Jean-Sébastien Tougas

, was named Senior Male Coach of the Year.

"It's such a great honour to be named athlete of the year," Cournoyer said. "It means so much to me especially since most of the important competitions of the year were in Quebec! I did my best to represent Canada in every competition I had this year and am really happy to see all of my hard work pay off."

Emma Spence gave Dynamo a double victory, winning the junior women's all-around title with a score of 53.001, ahead of Imogen Paterson of Vancouver Phoenix (52.734) and Kyra Cato and Calgary (50.768). Spence also added gold medals on uneven bars and floor exercise in finals.

In the junior men's category, David Sandro won the age group for 16 and 17 year olds with a score of 100.434. (The junior men's competition included a physical testing score added to the all-around total). Sandro is coached by his father, 1996 Romanian Olympian

Nistor Şandro

, at Gold Medal Gymnastics, the family's club in Milton, Ontario. Born in Reşiţa, Romania, Sandro turn 17 on June 6.

Evgeny Siminiuc of Mississauga's Futures Gymnastics finished just a fraction behind Sandro with 100.405, while teammate Dorian Doan won the bronze (98.189).

Siminiuc and Doan are both coached by Chinese

Zhaohui Huang

, who was named the Age Group Coach of the Year. Huang, a native of Shanghai, has been the head coach at Futures since 1998.

In the 14-15 age group, Vancouver's Evan Fedder won the gold with 90.264. Québec's Benoît Tremblay

(Unigym) took silver with a total of 88.847, while Nova Scotia's

Matthew Brown

(Titans) won the bronze medal with 87.464.
